თქვენ წინაშეა საგამოცდო ტესტის ელექტრონული ბუკლეტი.

ტესტი შედგება 8 დავალებისაგან და ამოწმებს ინგლისურ ენაზე მოსმენის, კითხვისა და წერის უნარებს.

ყურადღებით გაეცანით ტესტის ყოველი დავალების პირობას და ისე შეასრულეთ დავალებები.

პასუხები გადაიტანეთ პასუხების ფურცელზე. გახსოვდეთ, რომ სწორდება მხოლოდ პასუხების ფურცელი.

ტესტის მაქსიმალური ქულაა 80.

ტესტზე სამუშაოდ გეძლევათ 2 საათი და 30 წუთი.

გისურვებთ წარმატებას!

Task 3: Read the questions (1-8) and find the answers to them in the paragraphs (A-F) of the text. Some paragraphs correspond to more than one question. (8 points)

Which paragraph

1. explains why Dr Lucid's work on board of Mir was effective?
2. names the award that the president of the USA gave to Dr Lucid?
3. mentions how long Dr Lucid stayed on Mir?
4. says that dreams may come true even in real life?
5. states what helped the research agency create an international space station?
6. names the country where Dr Lucid received her education?
7. could have the title: 'Experiments in space'?
8. could have the title: 'Lessons learnt'?

Space Pioneer

A. The American astronaut, Shannon Lucid was born in Shanghai, China. Her parents were Baptist missionaries. During World War II Shannon Lucid and her parents spent several months in a Japanese prison camp near Shanghai. Lucid was six when her family decided to leave China due to the communists rising to power. They settled in Bethany, Oklahoma, USA. She received bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees from the University of Oklahoma. Shannon Lucid worked with the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation in Oklahoma City until 1978. The same year she was selected among the six women to be trained as astronaut candidates for flights aboard the space shuttle*.

B. Growing up in Bethany, during the 1950s, Shannon Lucid dreamt of exploring outer space. And when she read about rocket inventor Robert Goddard, she realised that she had been born just in time to become a space explorer! So, Dr Lucid decided to study space and she did it successfully. She became a scientist, and then an astronaut. By the time of her experience on the space station Mir, Lucid had flown on four Shuttle missions. On September 26, 1996, Dr Lucid returned to Earth after spending more than six months on Mir. Instead of 146 days Dr Lucid had to stay in orbit, she stayed there for forty-two days longer.

C. Dr Lucid was the second American astronaut to live aboard the space station Mir as part of a program to study the effects of a long travel in space on the human body. The results of Dr Lucid's study helped the research agency - the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) - develop an international space station, which was launched in 1998. Dr Lucid loved life in space. She said: 'One of the best things to do is to look out the window and see the Earth, and watch the seasons change. I got to see the ice in all the lakes break up, and the Earth bloom.'

D. Dr Lucid holds the American and women's record for the longest stay in space. She received the Congressional Space Medal of Honour from President Clinton. On the space station her strong character helped Dr Lucid deal with the stress of weightlessness*. From other astronauts' stories Dr Lucid knew that she had to avoid eating unfamiliar food in space to stay healthy and happy. So, Dr Lucid took some American food with her in space that would regularly be filled up by food and other things which were brought to Mir by special space ships.

E. Dr Lucid also stayed in touch with her family through emails and talks by radio and television. Although she was in space longer than any other American, she still managed to keep her weight as well as strength in her bones and muscles. When Dr Lucid returned to Earth, she surprised everyone by walking off the space shuttle herself instead of being carried. While on Mir, Dr Lucid performed experiments on the development of quail* eggs and growing wheat in the conditions of weightlessness. In fact, her own body was an experiment in human adaptation to space.

F. Dr Lucid's companions for most of her stay on the space station Mir were two men-astronauts. Lucid said: 'They're both very nice people and I've enjoyed working with them. They have different personalities. I think the personalities complement one another fairly well.' Dr Lucid's mission was successful because she had a good relationship with the astronauts on the space station. She joked, ate and watched adventure movies together with them. Even though Dr Lucid and the two astronauts grew up in different countries, they became good friends. Dr Lucid's story can inspire anyone who thinks that dreams come true not only in fairy tales.

Task 4: Read the text and the questions which follow. For each question mark the correct answer (A, B, C or D). (8 points)

This is a true story told by a young mother.

‘Mornings in our household start with breakfast for everyone: us, as well as rabbits, goats, ponies, chickens and a horse. It’s a big job, but it goes quickly when you have someone to help you. If you think it’s my husband, then you are wrong. My only help is my 10-year-old daughter, Iris. She comes and feeds the animals together with her cat, called Nala. Nala likes to sit on the fence and watch the chickens.

My daughter, Iris, was born in 2009 and was, in my opinion, the most beautiful baby with tiny fingers, toes and blue eyes. But those eyes always seemed to be looking elsewhere, never at me or my husband. It was as if she lived in her own world, separate from ours. When Iris turned two, we took her to a doctor. The doctor said that Iris had severe autism – a kind of illness connected with developmental disorder. It was very hard and even impossible for her to do the simplest things. Speaking was difficult for Iris; she could say only a few words. Doctors told us it was possible that Iris would never say more. She avoided human contact. It was difficult for her to sleep at night. Bath time was the worst of all. Iris hated water. She would scream when I washed her hair and would try to climb out of the tub. It was heartbreaking and exhausting. I would lie awake in the middle of the night and cry. The only thing that Iris enjoyed was drawing. She didn’t like going to school so I started to teach her at home. She would spend hours with a brush in her hand fully concentrating her attention to her work. I tried to invite the neighbour’s children to play with Iris but she avoided them.

I'd read that animals can help children with autism. I loved horses and hoped to share that passion with my daughter. But they terrified Iris. Dogs weren't any better. Neither fish or birds helped. I was losing hope that our little girl would ever have contact with others. Then one Christmas Day I noticed that Iris liked my brother's cat's companionship. So, I started looking for a friendly and quiet cat for Iris. And I found one.

It was an American breed that, in addition to being calm, loved water. The day I brought the kitten home, I sat Iris down in the living room and said I had a surprise for her. Then I brought in the cat carrier. As soon as I opened the door, the kitten poked her head out. She was gorgeous, with fluffy brown striped fur and long ears. She looked around the room with her intelligent green eyes, then walked towards Iris. The kitten sniffed Iris with her pink nose. I held my breath. The kitten crawled into my daughter's lap. Iris smiled; she looked happy. Their connection was instant and magical! We named the kitten Nala. From that moment on, the two were very close. Wherever Iris went, there was Nala. She watched as Iris painted. Nala would feel when Iris was getting nervous and she would easily calm her. From the first night, she slept in Iris' bed. Nala became her sleeping pills. I kept checking on them, but Iris slept peacefully through the night. This never happened before, even when I stayed in bed with her or when I left the light on. And, yes, our Nala loved water. Soon Iris was taking regular baths. Nala was right in the water with her. We'd had Nala for only a few months when one day I heard Iris say, "Sit, cat." And Nala sat. I heard more and more words. Iris even started expressing herself to me and my husband. Our life dramatically changed since we have had Nala.'

Task 6: Read the text and fill the gaps with one of the following: article, preposition, conjunction or relative pronoun. Insert only ONE word. Do not copy the extra words from the text on the answer sheet. (12 points)

The statue is in danger

Extreme weather presents a challenge to outdoor statues, especially if they come from ancient times. Today scientists are warning the civilised society (1) a combination of dirt, salt, sun, sand and wind may destroy the huge statue on the outskirts of Cairo. The statue with the body of a lion (2) the face of a human being is called the Sun God. The five-thousand-year-old statue is too badly damaged. The statue had already been dug out of the sand three times. However, (3) latest problems are much more serious. First, there are no proper water pipes (4) the neighbourhood and the underground passage round the statue has become blocked. Too much water has been running under the stone statue (5) several years. As a result, tiny pieces (6) salt have been left on the stone and have damaged it. Secondly, air pollution which is caused (7) the increasing amount of traffic (8) Cairo is also destroying the ancient statue. The air is so full of poisonous gases (9) the stone of the statue gets destroyed even faster. Thirdly, the statue is being damaged by extremes of temperature; although the air is very cold (10) night, during the day the stone of the statue becomes very hot under the strong sun. Other natural forces such as severe sandstorms also attack the statue. Finally, the tourists who visit the statue every day also cause (11) lot of damage. So, it's obvious (12) the government should do something to save this precious statue from destruction.
